

Colvin Davis Summer Training Program on the Canadian Prairies for field trial dogs & personal hunting dogs

Why Send Your Dog to the Prairie With Us?

For the past three decades, we have returned to our Broomhill grounds each summer to train dogs on sharptail grouse and Hungarian partridge and to condition them for the upcoming field trial or hunting season. Whether you compete your dog on liberated birds or wild birds, whether you preserve hunt or travel the country hunting wild birds, nothing benefits a bird dog more than proper exposure to wild birds.

Young dogs learn faster exposed to sharptail grouse than on any other species of game bird simply because a covey rarely flushes all at once, allowing the dog to make an error, be corrected, and then succeed in holding steady for the next flushed bird. Ample opportunities – with the right trainer – to repeat this process results in the dog becoming steady on birds without confusion thus retaining enthusiasm to find more birds. The dog's inability to catch wild birds hastens the process and avoids unnecessary training pressure. Proven methods and experience are the key to your pointing dog's training and conditioning success.

We take only a limited number of field trial and hunting dogs. The training (birds and handling), conditioning and feeding of each dog is tailored to their individual needs. All the dogs are worked regularly on wild birds.
